"Songs I Tried to Resist" - John Linnell from They Might Be Giants' Playlist

"If I'm going to like a song I usually like it right away. I try to be open-minded and I don't feel that I'm particularly jaded. But there are times when one is so worn down by repeated disappointments that the ears stop paying attention, and then you sometimes miss out on the real hidden treasures. With that in mind, here's a collection of songs that someone (often my wife) played around the house or specially for my consideration that I didn't go for until after the first or sometimes even the tenth listen. In some cases I had every reason to believe that I wouldn't like what I was going to hear and was, to paraphrase the redoubtable George Michael, 'listening with prejudice.' In all cases my reservations turned out to be unfounded and my resistance was

"Cat in as Cat Out" (Track 1): "I know I was supposed to like this CD and resisted
